

Community Options names chief compliance officer

---

By Emily Bader, October 10, 2017 at 12:19 PM

Courtney Eidel has been named chief compliance officer at Community Options Inc. - (COMMUNITY OPTIONS INC.)

---

Princeton-based Community Options Inc., a nonprofit supporting people with disabilities, announced recently it has appointed Courtney Eidel to its new chief compliance officer.

"With the unpredictability of the Affordable Care Act, Community Options is taking a proactive role to ensure that we are ahead of the curve with compliance for those we support with autism, intellectual and other developmental disabilities," CEO and President Robert Stack said. "I am pleased to appoint Courtney to this prestigious post."

Eidel has 17 years of human resources experience, and has worked with Community Options for eight years.

"Ensuring quality is critical to providing the best services possible for those we support," Eidel said.

"Courtney's knowledge of community based and national developmental disabilities services will enable Community Options to increase independence and quality of life by raising the standards that ensure safe and effective fulfillment and care of our most vulnerable population," Philip Lian, chairman of Community Options Enterprises, said.

Also Popular on NJBIZ

- Triple Play: How New Jersey can compete in today's office market
- International food vendor ALDI to hire up to 250 new employees in N.J.
- Rockefeller breaks ground on Piscataway logistics center
- Advance, DeBartolo open Steel Works, break ground in Harrison Riverbend district